The Kellogg-Spofford Examination

NEW ORLEANS Nov 19 —In the Kellogg Spofford inquiry to-day Bernard Williams was recalled and testified that Jim Lewis paid his way to Washington. While in Washington Gov Kellogg gave him all the money he wanted Kellogg instructed witness to offer Murray $3000 to go to Canada and and testify In answer to Senator Cameron's question as to who was present when Kellogg told witness to offer Murray $5000 witness replied "Nobody. You don't think that when a man does that sort of business he is foolish enough to have any body present." Jim Lewis and Morris Marks tried to keep me from coming before the committee Lewis said I would be well paid They would send me away Marks sent for me three times last Saturday to come to the custom house I did not go because I was afraid they would kill me, and I am satisfied that if I had gone I would not now be alive. Cross-examination by Senator Cameron developed the fact that witness had been in the confederate army Deserted was captured and punished. Williams' connection with confederate army accounts for his failure to collect his pension claim from the federal government

Renan's New Book.

Ernest Renan has just published at Paris the sixth volume of his series "The History of the Origins of Christianity" which will be completed in a few months by the publication of the seventh treatise having as its theme the title, "Marcus Aurelius" The other volumes of the series in their order are "The Life of Christ," "The Apostles " "St Paul," "The Antichrist "The Gospels, and "The Christian Church The following is a paragraph from one of the chapters of the volume just issued

People die for opinions—not for certainties for that which they believe and not for that which they know. The sage who has found a theorem has not need to die to attest the truth of that theorem He gives his demonstration and that suffices. On the contrary when beliefs are in question the great sign and the most efficacious demonstration is to die for them. Here is to be found the explanation for the extraordinary success which has attended many of the religious experiments of the orient; martyrdom does not in any manner prove the truth of a doctrine but it does show the impression that the doctrine makes on the mind and that is all that is needed for success The greatest conquest of Christianity, such as the conversion of a Justin or a Tertullian were brought about by the spectacle of the courage of martyrs and the rapidity and the torments and infernal fury of their persecutors.

[Letter to the Philadelphia Press.]

In personal appearance Mr Gladstone is an active, lithe, muscular man, rather tall and of well proportioned frame His face and features have that clear cut contour which generally indicates several generations of intellectual activity and personal leadership Mr Gladstone is the descendant of a long line of Scottish lairdmen of small wealth and limited possessions, but accustomed to stand first in their community to think and to lead. The face is scholarly cultivated, its outlines sharply defined by that meagreness of muscle which distinguishes the intellectual athlete. There is not an ounce of superfluous flesh on it. The thin lips and well cut mouth and the unbroken firmness determination and endurance. Seventy summers have sat lightly on Mr. Gladstone, but the years have brought their blessing of rest and his face in repose wears the repose of strength and experience—strongly lined with the record of struggle and thought A new fact however or an aggressive opinion wakes the whole man with the fire of youth and the eye flashes with eager light and the body leans quickly forward as if to grasp a fresh opportunity. Like all strong Englishmen Mr Gladstone is a man of large physical power and endurance, fond of out door air and work and the ring of his ax at Hawarden so far famed in England, has echoed even across the Atlantic.

First De La Matyr.

CINCINNATI, Nov 6 —The Rev Gilbert De La Matyr, greenback congressman from Indiana, is making a series of fiat money speeches in the southern portion of his state In conversation to-day he expressed himself as much disappointed at the defeat of Butler in Massachusetts Butler he says will head the greenback ticket for president in 1880 with Jones, of Texas for second place Since Kelly's fiasco in New York he believes the democrats will nominate Hendricks The republican candidate he predicts will be either Grant or Blaine The greenback party De La Matyr says has no intention of abandoning their fight

Ceremonies by the Society of the Army of the Cumberland—Brilliant Procession and Elaborate Decorations Etc

District [illegible]

A [illegible]

Committees [illegible] to decide upon the time and place for the next annual meeting [illegible]

WASHINGTON Nov 19 The city presents a gala day appearance The streets are thronged with people seeking places from which to view the march of the army of the Cumberland and the unveiling of the statue of Gen Thomas Buildings public and private along the route are very generally and handsomely decorated The quartermaster general's building is profusely draped with national colors displaying a large number of flags that were torn and riddled on the battle fields of the Mexican war Stretched across the street is a well executed portrait of General Thomas

The decorations at Thirteenth street where the statue is erected are very rich Around a circle are 39 lofty poles united by a rope of evergreens each pole bearing the insignia and coat of arms of a state and a panel commemorating the battles in which the army of the Cumberland was engaged or the name of one of its deceased general officers At each of four corners of the pedestal upon which the statue stands there is a pole corresponding with the poles representing the states and flanked by stacks of muskets and field pieces the spaces intervening being ornamented with pyramids of cannon balls Here also a platform has been erected capable of seating 1000 persons The platform for speakers is within this and its panels bear panels on which are inscribed the names of Anderson Sherman Buell and Rosecrans In addition to these appear panels at various points bearing the names of Brigadier Generals [illegible] Ewell R S McCook Sill Lytle Harker and Daniel McCook who were killed in battle or died of wounds Hundreds of other panels scattered throughout the decorations are inscribed with the names of all the corps and division commanders of the army of the Cumberland Handsome private residences around the circle are also very tastefully decorated

The procession was formed on Pennsylvania avenue, near the capitol and started promptly at 1 o'clock It was composed of five divisions and was one hour passing a given point Gen T T Crittenden was chief marshal assisted by the following marshals of divisions, each of whom was attended by a brilliant staff Gens R D Mussey R V Boynton E A Carna B Grafton and Col R Hamill Upon arriving at the circle where the statue was placed the ceremonies of unveiling were begun by prayer Hail to the Chief and The Star Spangled Banner were sung by a grand chorus with a grand drum corps and artillery accompaniment The statue was then unveiled people at a distance being informed of the fact by a salute of thirteen guns from Fort Whipple Grand hymns were then given by a chorus of 100 male voices supported by a military band drum corps and artillery.

At the conclusion of the hymns Stanley Matthews delivered an oration The presentation of the statue was made as an offering from the army of the Cumberland to the nation and President Hayes accepted the offering on behalf of the people of the United States The president said

In the name of the people of the United States I accept this noble statue so worthy of its subject erected in honor of Gen George H Thomas by his comrades of the illustrious army of the Cumberland

The exercises at the circle occupied two hours It was estimated that 50,000 people were in the throng that surrounded the enclosure A general holiday was observed throughout the city, and the entire populace appeared to be in the streets The military features of the process on surpassed anything that has been seen in the city since the grand review at the close of the war The procession on the way to the circle passed the White House, where the president Secretary Sherman Secretary Evarts Secretary McCrary Secretary Thompson Secretary Schurz and Postmaster General Key occupied seats upon a platform erected for the occasion The band at the head of the procession played Hail to the Chief and the president and those on the stand acknowledged the salute as they did that of each successive band and division

After some routine business the meeting was adjourned and members went in position in the procession

The capitol treasury department and several other buildings were illuminated with electric lights this evening and Pennsylvania avenue was ablaze with gas and densely thronged with people Rockets and bombs were sent up from the south front of the treasury department, and from various parts of the city The grand tent erected upon the grounds south of the White House was the main point of attraction for members of the army of the Cumberland invited guests and citizens generally At 8 o'clock when the exercises began about 6000 persons were packed within while twice as many more thronged every approach The tent was brilliantly illuminated with cordons of gas jets surrounding the seven center poles which supported the canvas and presented an animated [illegible] of glittering uniforms and gorgeous toilets The exercises were begun with prayer by Rev H C McCauley of All Souls (Unitarian) church of this city Judge Arthur McArthur delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the city After music by the West Point band [illegible] General Anson G McCook delivered an oration

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

A[illegible] years ago the province of British Columbia joined the Canadian confederation. In [illegible] the terms of the union the province [illegible] with Canada. A graving dock at [illegible] and various other improvements were stipulated for, but the capital condition of the bond was the construction of a railway across the continent to connect British Columbia with the system of railways in the eastern provinces. This was to have been begun within two years from the date of the union and completed within ten years thereafter. It took some time to make the necessary surveys and it was not till after these were reported that the Dominion government really began to comprehend the gigantic nature of the undertaking to which it was committed. The plan involved the construction of a railway about [illegible]00 miles in length, one-half of which would pass through a sterile wilderness and much of the whole through the most mountainous districts in North America, opposing vast obstacles to engineering enterprise and requiring enormous outlay of money for the construction of a road. Of the various estimates of cost none were under $100 000 000. So stupendous a work naturally produced hesitation on the part of the government, and the people, when the reports of surveys had revealed to them the formidable nature of the undertaking to which they were pledged, turned the government out of power. Their successors, known as the Mackenzie government, contemplated a virtual abandonment of the scheme or of postponing it indefinitely, and meantime there was substituted for it a plan for a half rail and half water route from Ottawa to Red river and Lake Winnepeg. British Columbia was however still amused with promises. Surveys were continued. But these only tended to confirm the fears of the people of the Dominion that they had undertaken a work too great for their resources. To make matters worse the years of plenty were followed by years of deficits. The revenue failed to reach the current expenditure while the outlay on capital account was assuming alarming proportions. To add to these difficulties the British Columbians demanded the immediate fulfillment of the terms of union. The people of the Pacific province were tired of surveys and explorations which ended in nothing but blue books and desultory debates in parliament. The discontent at the policy of the government became general, and, as the elections drew near investigations were held to ascertain why so many millions of dollars had been expended upon the Pacific railway with so little to show, in the way of permanent work, for the outlay. An Ottawa letter reports that these investigations extending over a period of three years, have brought to light many interesting facts concerning the character of the country between the Ottawa river and the Pacific coast. Even to the dissatisfied British Columbians they have demonstrated the enormous difficulties of constructing the railway through their country. But on the other hand they have revealed to the people of the eastern provinces the vast extent and inexhaustible fertility of their possessions in the great northwest. Since the change of government a year ago and the return of the original projectors of the Pacific railway to power, the policy of Mackenzie has been abandoned wherever such a course was practicable, and modified where the work was under contract. Although the construction of the Georgian bay branch had been commenced before the change of government the new administration has canceled the contract and suspended operations entirely on that section. On the Thunder bay portion of the line work was too far advanced to permit of any modifications of the scheme. "What Mr Mackenzie termed his 'water stretches policy'" has been given up and the government is now directing its energies to the completion of an all rail route from Thunder Bay in Lake Superior to the Winnipeg basin, with the ultimate design of continuing it on to the upper Saskatchewan country and to the base of the Rocky mountains. The whole line between Thunder Bay and Red river is now under construction though the route much of the way is one of great difficulties and the good land on the entire 400 miles is limited to small areas at the two termini. Contracts have also been let for the building of 100 miles of the Pacific railroad proper westward from Red river. That will carry it to the western boundary of Manitoba. From the very outset that will be a paying section. It follows the valley of the Assiniboin about midway between the river and Lake Manitoba. The country through which it passes is level and presents no engineering difficulties of any kind. The population in that part of the province, already large, is increasing with great rapidity. The first difficulty to be encountered after passing through Manitoba is the crossing of the Little Saskatchewan. The river itself is not larger than the Ohio but its channel lies at the bottom of a deep gorge the narrowest part of which is nearly three miles wide. In crossing the great roof of the continent, the "divide" of the Rocky mountains no considerable difficulties will be encountered. But the British Columbia section presents obstacles of a most formidable nature. There will be cuttings and tunnels innumerable for miles the bed of the road must be cut out of the faces of abrupt and rocky slopes and protected by snow sheds. The section to be placed under contract begins at Yale, the head of ocean navigation on Frazer river and extends for 125 miles in a northeasterly direction. It is a most rocky and mountainous country, has no settlements and will afford no local traffic. The report from Ottawa hereinbefore referred to which we have mainly followed thus summarizes the position in which the Canadian Pacific stands to day. The Pembina branch from the international boundary line to its junction with the main line at Selkirk seventy two miles is open for traffic. [illegible]00 miles of the main line from Thunder Bay on Lake Superior to the western boundary of the province of Manitoba are under contract and partially built. In British Columbia a section of 125 miles from Yale to a point on the upper Frazer is advertised and it is supposed will soon be placed under contract. Unless our neighbors of British Columbia shall be again disappointed work on their section will begin next spring. These parts of the road are said to include portions of the most difficult country through which the [illegible] is and when completed will at [illegible] be [illegible] lable for business. But it will be [illegible] years before the Canadian Pacific [illegible] as [illegible] projected nine years ago [illegible] accomplished [illegible] to [illegible] straggling line of provinces [illegible] more than a nominal confederation. As for the British Columbia section [illegible] by any possibility be made [illegible] half its running expenses for years to come. But construction of the road is in [illegible] the bond and the Dominion seems to be [illegible] to meet the engagement made when it had no conception of the [illegible] of its undertaking.

POSTAL STATISTICS

The postal receipts and expenses of the fiscal year which ended 30th June last have been compiled at the postoffice department with a view of showing what the service has cost in each state and territory during the year and what each state and each territory has paid towards sustaining the service. M[illegible] required to make a statement [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] The [illegible] upon the general growth of respective sections [illegible] Postmaster General Key says that postal receipts are a very true [illegible] of the [illegible] and business growth of [illegible]. Measured by this standard [illegible] the [illegible] are [illegible] barely holding their own or running behind. The [illegible] of the fiscal year [illegible] was too early for the receipts [illegible] affected by the business boom which [illegible] the country last summer [illegible] the figures given [illegible] their postal receipts for the [illegible] decrease [illegible]

Most of the eastern states show increased receipts over last year. Massachusetts especially shows a large gain, the total receipts of the postoffice in that state for the year being $[illegible]. Of course New York is first of all the states in the magnitude of receipts through her postoffices, the total for the year being $[illegible] which is $[illegible] more than for the next preceding year. Pennsylvania comes second and Illinois third in the list. It is noticeable that Illinois is far ahead of Ohio in this showing, the figures being $1 [illegible]6 440 for Ohio and $[illegible] 398 [illegible] for Illinois.

The southern states stand remarkably low in the list of postal receipts. Florida with twice the population of Oregon is far behind our state, the figures for Oregon being $124 639 and for Florida $84 828. West Virginia with three or four times our population patronizes the postoffice but little more than we do as she pays but $[illegible]. But the remarkable thing is that Minnesota beats Kentucky, Nebraska goes ahead of Mississippi and Kansas far surpasses Georgia or Virginia. The figures for Kansas are $504,713, for Georgia $353 088, for Virginia $419 606. From California the receipts of the postoffice are greater than from Tennessee, Alabama and Louisiana combined.

The states of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Michigan pay to the postoffice department a net revenue. If the other states did as well in proportion the net profit to the treasury from the postal service would be not less than $10 000 000.

In cudgelling its brains for the original author of the phrase recently used by Lord Beaconsfield—"peace with honor"—the New York World finds it first in Coriolanus, next in Defoe's Memoirs of a Cavalier, and finally in several other places. It would be about as sensible to search the libraries for the original author of the phrase "justice with mercy" or "liberty with order" or "hot whisky with lemon." That such a phrase as "peace with honor" would be likely to present itself to any one who had occasion to employ it does not seem to occur to literary rag pickers who turn everything of this kind into laborious learning. Among the tens of thousands who have familiarly used this phrase, which is a combination of words as perfectly natural as was ever used to express a simple and common idea, some have occasionally written it down in books. Hence the literary chiffoniers jump to the conclusion that any later user borrowed or stole it. Half the imputed plagiarisms the detection of which is so much boasted of by these students of phrase genealogy have no better origin than this.

The Fort Wayne (Ind.) Sentinel says that the democrats of Indiana must bring out Senator McDonald for governor or prepare to hand the state over to the republicans next year. A few short months ago McDonald was scoffed at by the Indiana democracy because he would not bow down to the greenback Baal. Now he is the rock and fortress of his party. What has happened to shake the Hoosier democracy?

California journals are bragging ridiculously about a little rainfall that has occurred in their state. In Oregon we never think of such a thing. But a poor state like California must make the most of a little shower that in Oregon would amount to nothing.

There seems to be no doubt that Gen. Garfield will be elected senator in Ohio. A great majority of the republican members of the legislature are said to have expressed a preference for him.

A COMPLIMENT TO [illegible] New York Daily Graphic of Nov [illegible] and news taken on the [illegible] east side of [illegible] First street [illegible] down show the handsome [illegible] junction of Morrison and First streets [illegible] decorations [illegible] There are two other views [illegible] Fort Vancouver [illegible] faithfully reproduced [illegible] accompanying the [illegible] the reception given [illegible] the people of Portland [illegible] were prepared [illegible] correspondent [illegible] the reception the [illegible] "We would be happy [illegible] descriptions [illegible] writers so much [illegible] have on the [illegible] we have no room [illegible] all live in the [illegible] Portland and [illegible] woods where [illegible] used to echo the how[illegible] of the [illegible] the arose [illegible]

A DIABOLICAL DEVICE —Some time ago the city authorities bought several suits of oil clothing. It was wondered why the city of Portland had in view that it should make an investment of this kind But the vags and dead beats who have been in the habit of getting into the city jail soon found out. In spite of the inclemency of the weather that had been prevailing up to a few days past, they were dressed up in these oil suits and started out into the peltings of the pitiless storm to clean the streets This was hard on them It reduced the inducements to commit petty offences so as to get warm quarters at the city jail with a belly full of beef and potatoes, and the number of inmates at the "stockade" has been kept pretty low this fall compared with the number heretofore. Those oil suits are paying their cost many times over But there are those who consider them a diabolical invention against the peace and comfort of the citizen

A HANDSOME KEYBOARD —The Oregon Furniture Company exhibit in their show window, corner First and Yamhill streets a beautiful keyboard made by them for the Umatilla House at The Dalles. The arched frame containing panels of Oregon maple is of Oregon ash with ebonized carvings The main panel is of Oregon oak root filled and highly polished The top is adorned at the center with a goat's head carved in black walnut, bearing in his mouth a neat sign with the name of the hotel while a duck carved from the same wood, at the left bears in its bill the name of one proprietor "Handley," and one at the right the name of the other proprietor "Sinnott" The keyboard is decidedly a rich ornament and speaks well for the enterprising firm.

GOOD GUNNERS.—Local sportsmen who have to earn their game three times over from the scarcity in this vicinity, will feel some what of envy as well as interest in the following record of gunning exploits reported by the Astorian. "Messrs Johnson and Arnold who have followed up hunting pretty closely the past fall in this vicinity killed 1600 geese and ducks during the month of October From the 1st of November up to the present time such game has been very scarce, probably because of the extreme high tides, which have prevented the flats going bare Mr Johnson informs us that the best shot of the season was made by Mr Arnold, who killed 43 in number. The next best shot was made when Mr Johnson killed four honking geese on the wing, all there was in the flock "

FROM ASTORIA —The following specials to the Merchants' Exchange were received yesterday from Astoria 4 P M —Cloudy light N E wind Steamer Mary Taylor from Shoalwater or Gray's harbor, arrived at 2 P M. British ship Millwall for Queenstown, and bark W. A. Holcomb for Hongkong, passed out this afternoon 6 10 P M —Steamer Hayley, from Gray's harbor arrived at [illegible] British ship Cockermouth in tow of the Brodie, arrived down at 5 P M

BOUND FOR COLORADO —The last steamer brought the necessary papers from the governor of California to Detective Ross, who arrested Ah Wing here about two weeks ago on a charge of murder committed in that state in 1875. Ross and his prisoner will be passengers on the outgoing steamer this morning. Wing will be taken to Colorado, where he will be identified and if he proves to be the right man, will be put on his trial

HARRISON STREET SCHOOL HOUSE —Work on the Harrison Street School house is being pushed forward very rapidly The contract calls for the completion of the building by the 15th of January, but from the manner in which the work is being crowded the building will be ready for occupancy before that date. The stair builders are busily engaged and the first coat of plaster has been put on which will soon be followed by the second

MECHANICS' PAVILION LEASED — Messrs Plymale & Parker we understand have leased the Mechanics' Pavilion for the term of six months It is the intention of the lessees to convert the immense building temporarily into a skating rink The conditions of the lease are such that Messrs Plymale & Parker can give any kind of amusement in the Pavilion which they may choose provided the board of directors do not object

FINISHING TOUCHES —Workmen were engaged yesterday in putting on the finishing touches of Klosterman's splendid new three-story brick, corner of Front and D streets, The building is one of the most substantial in the city, and adds much to the appearance of the street. Messrs Klosterman Bros are moving into the corner room of the block this week

GOOD TOWING TIME.—The steamer Lurline towed the Aberlemno from Astoria to this city two days ago, in 12 hours and 50 minutes against a freshet in the Willamette and a head wind across Cathlamet bay and was delayed by heavy drift in the Willamette running under a slow bell several times

BURGLARIZED.—Some time during Tuesday night, a burglar entered the residence of Capt E. H. Lamson, at the corner of Yamhill and West Park streets However the light-fingered individual took fright and ran away before he captured any plunder He only captured $1 35 in coin

ANOTHER PRISONER.—Deputy Sheriff Baldwin, of Wasco county, arrived here last evening, having in charge a prisoner named Ward Jim. This prisoner is under sentence to the penitentiary for five years for assault with intent to commit robbery being armed with a dangerous weapon

ANOTHER NARROW ESCAPE — A dispatch from Umatilla states that the steamboat Almota while passing the Umatilla rapids yesterday with a scow in tow was thrown upon a rock and that she was only rescued with the greatest difficulty

GONE TO THE PENITENTIARY —Hogan and Baker, each under sentence for the period of three years for larceny and Ah Con under sentence for five years for larceny, were taken to the penitentiary yesterday

NUMBER OF PRISONERS —There are now 15 prisoners confined in the county jail There will doubtless be a few less before the circuit court adjourns Several are booked for Ruhl's hotel

PERSONAL —The invitation card to the grand banquet, seen in Henrichsen & Greenberg's window indicates Mr Greenberg's return with many new and handsome goods

ST PAUL'S CHURCH DALLES This church having provided for all its liabilities will be consecrated by Bishop Morris on Sunday the 23d of November

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT —The musical community both here and [illegible] the state, will be pleased to learn that Messrs D W Prentice & Co, No 107 First street will receive in about [illegible] days an immense invoice of sheet music [illegible] the very latest and best publications [illegible] additions are received [illegible] the largest ever carried by any house on the North Pacific coast

A complete set of Harper's Magazine bound may be seen to day in the front window of J K. Gill & Co's book store [illegible] display of leather Goods direct from Offenbach in a few days.

At New Armory Hall

The all absorbing topic of interest at New Armory hall is whether [illegible] between Miss Von Berg and Mr Sturges of this city This race is a novel one and there is a good deal of comment as they continue on their weary tramp During the first 8 hours Sturges had rested three hours and placed 20 miles between him and the starting point, Miss Von Berg having rested two hours and placed [illegible] miles to her credit. The interest shown in this undertaking was manifested by the frequent applause which greeted both contestants Miss Von Berg appeared on the track at 9 45 last evening and for the first quarter did not seem to be as fresh as she is wont to be but after a short while she let out and did splendid passing Sturges several times amid the wildest enthusiasm She is determined to press this game Sturges [illegible] during to day and up till to morrow evening things will be getting down to a fine [illegible] and the question will be all but decided The lady is known to be a long stayer and it is her intention to keep even with her antagonist and on the home stretch make him show what there is in him Sturges, on the other hand, is just as confident as the lady in his ability and avers that she not he will be compelled to retire He is being admirably taken care of by his friends and Manager Blackburn and if he don't come out first best it is because there is no walking in him and judging from his demeanor during the first 24 hours he is not going to be left Taken altogether this promises to be one of the most exciting races that has ever taken place in the city and on the result of which considerable money will change hands as the friends of both are sanguine of success

The quarter mile walkers, Miss Florence and Miss Wiley are still as prompt to the call of the bell as on the first night, notwithstanding they have now been on the track continuously for 11 days without sleep except what they could in dulge in while on the track walking

Commencing on Saturday evening there will be a 75 hour contest between the various military companies of the city and as the boys have been indulging in less sleep and taking more exercise lately it is to be inferred that they are actively preparing for this contest and mean business

A brass and string band is in attendance at this hall every evening and lends its merry strains to the amusement of the audience. It is a resort where nightly some of our best citizens and their families spend a quiet hour much to their satisfaction

ANOTHER VETO

The following message was read from Mayor Thompson

MAYOR'S OFFICE PORTLAND Nov 11 1879

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Portland—GENTLEMEN I herewith return ordinance No —— entitled "An ordinance authorizing the construction of a wharf in front of and opposite lots 1 and 2 and south half of lot 3 block 74" passed Nov 5 1879 without my approval for the following reasons

On the 7th of August 1878 the common council passed ordinance No. 226 which was approved by the mayor August 13 1878 granting the right to construct a wharf and warehouse on lots 1 and 2 and north half of lot 3 block 74, similar to the wharf known as Pacific wharf and also to extend from east line of Front street to deep water in the Willamette river

On the 16th day of September 1879 J H Jones became the purchaser of said lots 1 and 2 and north half of lot 3 in block 74, and on the 7th day of October entered into a contract with Thomas G Davidson for the construction of a wharf and warehouse as was authorized by said ordinance No 226 and work was immediately commenced thereon A part of the money agreed to be paid to Davidson for constructing said wharf and warehouse was also paid him by the owner J H Jones

It is my opinion that Jones having commenced the work of constructing said wharf and warehouse as authorized by said ordinance No 226 in good faith and while said ordinance was in full force has a right to continue the work and that the ordinance repealing said ordinance No 226 would work a great hardship on said owner of lots 1 and north half of lot 3 in block 74 and would be an act of injustice to said owner of said lots and I therefore return said ordinance without my approval Respectfully submitted

D P THOMPSON Mayor

A vote was then taken as to whether or no the ordinance should pass The veto was sustained by the following vote

Yeas— Stolte—1

Nays—Gerdes Keller Nicklin Opitz Payne, Simon Watson Weber—8

FROM THE CITY ATTORNEY

The following communication from the city attorney was read and filed

OFFICE OF CITY ATTORNEY, PORTLAND Nov 25 1879

To the Honorable the Mayor and Common Council

GENTLEMEN I have to report that the cases brought by J S Smith and T M Richardson, against the city of Portland to restrain the collection of the assessments made for the construction of sewers (the first on Pine street and the other on Alder) made by the city have been decided by Judge Bellinger of the circuit court in favor of the city and the preliminary injunctions issued in these cases have been dissolved

The point decided in these cases in addition to those which were decided in the supreme court in the case of Strowbridge et al vs The City, is the decision of the council as to what property is benefited under the charter requiring the cost to be assessed on the property benefited, in the absence of fraud is conclusive and cannot be reviewed by bill in equity

These cases have settled the remaining question connected with the building of sewers and the rights of the city in relation thereto are now clearly defined and established

In my judgment there need be no further delay in enforcing the collection of assessments remaining due for construction of sewers Possibly these cases may be carried to the supreme court but there is but little doubt as to the affirmance [illegible] Respectfully submitted

Mr Scheffler is sole proprietor of the principle known as the vacuum process of distilling by which the fusil oils are left with the residue and not incorporated with the brandy, leaving it pure and free from all deleterious substances which does and must exist in all alcoholic liquors distilled by the usual process of boiling heat California Physicians have pronounced their preference of it to all other Doctor Cox government revenue officer at Cincinnati Ohio says in his report that after ten years of close investigation he can safely say that very few if any pure wines or brandy are exported from the Old Continent to this He has found none in his many analyses—that all are doctored before leaving France The French Consul at Buenos Ayres writes home to his government that so much complaint is made there of the appearance of litharge and other dangerous drugs in all their French wines, that there is great danger of losing the trade of the Argentine States Other proofs could be cited were it necessary to prove the superiority of the best class of California wines and brandy Orders from responsible parties, addressed to Wm Scheffler, or Geo H Beach St Helena Napa county Cal, will receive prompt attention

SONG.

Were I as pure as thou art sweet,
Then were my love for thee complete;
Were I as true as thou art fair,
Then could I kiss thy fragrant hair,
Were I as true as thou art fair.

Were I as steadfast as thine eyes,
Then might we taste love's paradise;
Were I as constant as thy worth,
Then heaven would bend to touch the earth,
Were I as constant as thy worth.

Were I as tender as thy prayers,
Then would I win thee unawares;
Were I as holy as thy tears,
Then wert thou mine through all the years
Were I as holy as thy tears.

But oh the sin, the grief, the care
To wed thee, sweet, I may not dare
I would not break thy trusting heart
So, though I die, our lives must part,
I would not break thy trusting heart
—From the Swedish.

DAVID SWAN'S SLEEP.

Could we indeed know all the vicissitudes of our fortunes, life would be too full of hope and fear, exultation or disappointment, to afford us a single hour of true serenity. This idea may be illustrated by a single page from the secret history of David Swan.

We have nothing to do with David until we find him at the age of twenty, on the high road from his native place to the city of Boston, where his uncle, a small dealer in the grocery line, was to take him behind the counter. But it is enough to say that he was a native of New Hampshire, born of respectable parents, and had received an ordinary school education with a classic finish of a year at Gilmanton Academy. After journeying on from sunrise till near noon of a summer's day, his weariness and the increasing heat determined him to sit down and await the coming of the stage coach. As if planted on purpose for him, there soon appeared a little clump of maples, with a delightful recess in the midst, and such a fresh bubbling spring that it seemed never to have sparkled for any wayfarer but David Swan. Virgin or not, he kissed it with his thirsty lips, and then flung himself along the brink, pillowing his head upon some shirts and a pair of pantaloons tied up in a striped cotton handkerchief. The sunbeams could not reach him; the dust did not rise from the road, after the heavy rain of yesterday; and his grassy lair suited the young man better than a bed of down. The spring murmured drowsily beside him; the birds floated across the blue sky overhead, and a deep sleep, perchance hiding dreams within its depths, fell upon David Swan.

While he lay sound asleep in the shade, other people were wide awake, and passed to and fro on horseback, and in all sorts of vehicles along the sunny road by his bed-chamber. Some looked neither to the right nor left, and knew not that he was there; some merely glanced that way, without admitting the slumberer among their busy thoughts; some laughed to see how soundly he slept; several whose hearts were brimming full of scorn ejected their venomous superfluity on David Swan. A middle-aged widow, when nobody else was near, thrust her head a little way into the recess, and vowed that the young fellow looked charming in his sleep. A temperance lecturer saw him, and wrought poor David into the texture of his evening's discourse, as an awful instance of dead drunkenness by the roadside. But censure, merriment, praise, scorn and indifference were all one, or rather all nothing to David Swan.

He had slept only a few minutes when a brown carriage drawn by a handsome pair of horses, bowled easily along, and was brought to a stand-still nearly in front of David's resting place. A linchpin had fallen out, and permitted one of the wheels to slide off. The damage was slight and occasioned merely a momentary alarm to an elderly gentleman and wife, who were returning to Boston in the carriage. While the coachman and a servant were replacing the wheel, the lady and gentleman sheltered themselves beneath the maple trees, and there espied the bubbling fountain and David Swan asleep beside it. Impressed with the awe which the humblest sleeper sheds around him, the merchant trod as lightly as the gout would allow; and his spouse took good heed not to rustle her silk gown, lest David should start up all of a sudden.

"How soundly he sleeps!" whispered the old gentleman. "From what a depth he draws that easy breath! Such sleep as that, brought on without an opiate, would be worth more to me than half my income; for it would argue health and an untroubled mind."

"And youth besides," said the lady." "Health and quiet age does not sleep thus. Our slumber is no more like his than our wakefulness."

Thus did this elderly couple feel interested in the unknown youth, to whom the wayside and the maple were as a secret chamber, with the rich gloom of damask curtains brooding over him. Perceiving that a stray sunbeam glimmered down upon his face, the lady contrived to twist a branch aside, so as to intercept it. And having done this act of kindness, she began to feel like a mother to him.

"Providence seems to have laid him here," whispered she to her husband, "and to have brought us hither to find him, after our disappointment in our cousin's son. Methinks I can see a likeness to departed Henry. Shall we awaken him?"

"To what purpose?" said the merchant, hesitating. "We know nothing of the youth's character."

"That open countenance!" replied the wife, in the same hushed voice, earnestly. "This innocent sleep."

While these whispers were passing the sleeper's heart did not throb, nor his breath become agitated, nor his features betray the least token of interest. Yet, fortune was bending over him, just ready to let fall a burden of gold. The old merchant had lost his only son, and had no heir to his wealth except a distant relative, with whose conduct he was dissatisfied. In such cases, people sometimes do stranger things than to act the magician, and awaken a young man in splendor who fell asleep in poverty.

"Shall we not waken him?" repeated the lady, persuasively.

"The coach is ready, sir," said the servant behind.

The old couple started, reddened, and hurried away, mutually wondering that they should ever dream of doing anything so ridiculous. The merchant threw himself back in his carriage and occupied his mind with the plan of a magnificent asylum for unfortunate men of business. Meanwhile, David Swan enjoyed his nap.

The carriage could not have gone above a mile or two, when a pretty young girl came along with a tripping pace, which showed precisely how her little heart was dancing in her bosom. Perhaps it was the merry kind of motion that caused—is there no harm in saying it?—her garter to slip its knot. Conscious that the silken girth—if silk it was—had relaxed its hold, she turned aside into the shelter of the maple trees, and there found a young man asleep by the spring. Blushing as red as any rose, that she should have intruded into a gentleman's bed-chamber, and for such a purpose, too, she was about to make her escape on tip-toe. But there was a peril near the sleeper. A monster of a bee had been wandering overhead—buzz, buzz, buzz—now among the leaves, now flashing through the stripes of sunshine, and now lost in the dark shade, till finally he appeared to be settling on the eyelid of David Swan. The sting of a bee is sometimes deadly. As free-hearted as she was innocent, the girl attacked the intruder with her handkerchief, brushed him soundly, and drove him from beneath the maple shade. How sweet a picture! This good deed accomplished, with quickened breath and a deeper blush, she stole a glance at the youthful stranger for whom she had been battling with a dragon in the air.

"He is handsome," thought she, and blushed redder yet.

How could it be that no dream of bliss grew so strong within him that, shattered by its very strength, it should part asunder and allow him to perceive the girl among its phantoms? Why, at least, did no smile of welcome brighten upon his face? She was come, the maiden whose soul, according to the old and beautiful idea, had been severed from his own, and whom, in all his vague but passionate desires, he yearned to meet. Her, only, could he love with a perfect love—him, only, could she receive into the depths of her heart—and now her image was faintly blushing in the fountain by her side; should it pass away its luster would never gleam upon his life again.

"How sound he sleeps!" murmured the girl.

She departed, but did not trip along the road so lightly as when she came.

Now this girl's father was a thriving country merchant in the neighborhood, and happened, at that identical time, to be looking for just such a young man as David Swan. Had David formed a wayside acquaintance with the daughter he would have become the father's clerk, and all else in natural succession. So here again had good fortune—the best of fortune—stolen so near that her garments brushed against him, and he knew nothing of the matter.

The girl was hardly out of sight when two men turned aside beneath the maple shade. Both had dark faces set off by cloth caps, which were drawn down aslant over their brows. Their dresses were shabby, yet had a certain smartness. These were a couple of rascals who got their living by whatever Satan sent them, and now in the interim of other business had staked the joint profits of their next piece of villainy on a game of cards, which was to have been decided here under the trees.

But, finding David asleep by the spring, one of the rogues whispered to his fellow:

"Hist! Do you see the bundle under his head?"

The other villain nodded, winked and leered.

"I'll bet you a horn of brandy," said the first, "that the chap has either a pocket-book or else he has a snug little hoard of small change stowed away among his shirts. And if not there we shall find it in his pantaloons pocket."

"But how if he wakes?" said the other.

His companion thrust aside his waistcoat, pointing to the handle of a dirk and nodded.

"So it be!" muttered the second villain.

They approached the unconscious David and while one pointed the dagger toward the heart, the other began to search the bundle beneath his head—their two faces, grim, wrinkled and ghastly with guilt and fear, bent over their victim, looking terrified enough to be mistaken for fiends should he suddenly awake. Nay, had the villains glanced aside into the spring, even they might not have known themselves as reflected there. But David Swan had never worn a more tranquil aspect, even when asleep on his mother's breast.

"I must take away the bundle," whispered one.

"But if he stirs. I'll strike," muttered the other.

But at this moment a dog scenting along the ground, came in beneath the maple trees and gazed alternately at each of those wicked men and then at the quiet sleeper. He then lapped out of the fountain.

"Pshaw!" said one villain, "we can do nothing now. The dog's master must be close behind."

"Let's take a drink and be off," said the other.

The man with the dagger thrust the weapon into his pocket and drew forth a pocket pistol, but not of that kind that kills by a single discharge. It was a flask of liquor, with a block-tin tumbler screwed upon the mouth. Each drank a comfortable dram and left the spot with so many jests, and such laughter at their unaccomplished wickedness, that they might be said to have gone on their way rejoicing. In a few hours they had forgotten the whole affair, nor once imagined that the recording angel had written down the crime of murder against their souls in letters as durable as eternity.

As for David Swan he slept quietly, neither conscious of the shadow of death when it hung over him, nor of the glow of renewed life when that shadow was withdrawn.

He slept, but no longer quietly as at first. An hour's repose had snatched from his elastic frame the weariness with which many hours of toil had burdened it. Now he stirred; now moved his lips, without a sound; now talked in an inward tone, to the noonday specters of his dream. But a noise of wheels came rattling louder and louder along the road until it dashed through the dispersing mist of David's slumber; and there was the stage coach. He started up with all his ideas about him.

"Halloo, driver! Take a passenger?" shouted he.

"Room on top," answered the driver.

Up mounted David and he bowled away merrily toward Boston, without as much as a parting glance at that fountain of dream-like vicissitudes. He knew not that a phantom of wealth had thrown its golden hue upon its waters, nor that one of love had sighed softly to their murmur, nor that one of death had threatened to crimson them with his blood; all in the brief hour since he lay down to sleep.

Sleeping or waking, we hear not the airy footsteps of the strange things that almost happen.—Nathaniel Hawthorne.

The same dull and nominal condition of the wheat market noticed yesterday continues, and transactions only occur when either the seller or buyer is under something like compulsion. While quotations in the local market, as far as they are indicated by sales are not lower, there is an evident lower feeling, and shippers are but little inclined to purchase in advance of their wants. Sales are less easily effected at $1 95, though but few holders are willing to accept that figure so soon after the higher rates which recently prevailed.

Other products are in good demand at steady prices. Mill feed is hardly in as full supply as a short time ago, and as the winter season comes on prices improve. Hay is still selling at $16@18 per ton with only moderate stocks on hand.

The several vessels on the berth for wheat are getting along well. The steamship Oregon with a light cargo of domestic products, will sail for San Francisco to-morrow morning. The bark Coloma for Hongkong and the barkentine Jane A. Falkinburg, for Honolulu, went down the river to day. The ships Beemah and Loch Cree are loading at the C street docks. The Arthur Stone from N. S. W., with a cargo of coal, has arrived. The ship Tecumseh is discharging railroad iron at the R. R. Co's dock. The ship Cockermouth is completing a cargo of wheat at Astoria and will sail for England in a few days. The schooner Emily Stevens is laid on for Tillamook and will have quick dispatch. The steamship State of California will be due here on Friday. The steamer California from Sitka and way ports is due here.

The depression in the grain markets abroad do not seem as yet to have effected freights, rates being about as firm as ever, but shippers are not much disposed to take up even the few vessels now in the market.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN
The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast.
IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL
CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES.

HAS RETURNED AFTER AN EXTENSIVE tour of the Eastern States, for the past four months. The Doctor while absent visited all the principal Medical institutions in the large cities of the United States, and comes back with all the modern methods, instruments and appliances known to the most scientific men in the profession. The Doctor has also brought charts and manikins to illustrate his lecture.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN has been fifteen years lecturing on the Laws of Life and Health. In his private and public lectures he has taught men and women the true system of life, how to be healthy and happy, if they would only be guided by his wise counsel. But all cannot hear his delightful and instructive lectures, nor can he tell everything necessary for suffering humanity to know from the public rostrum before a promiscuous audience. There remains much to be learned from him as his experience extends over broad fields of active professional life. This knowledge so necessary to the welfare of the sufferer can only be gleaned by private Professional Consultation at his office.

His experience in the various parts of Europe and America give him such opportunities of learning the delicate diseases which the human family are prone to, their mode of treatment and permanent cure, as no other physician on the Pacific Coast can claim. He has not only treated these diseases most successfully, but has made them a life study, as a few moments' consultation will prove.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH.

Such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

IT IS TRUE

That persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Those who call in time upon DR. PAUL M. BRENAN need have no fear but what he will restore them to perfect health and vigor, make their body pure and their mind content, if they will only follow his advice and treatment.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, cured without fail. No Quack Nostrums and no sham treatment, no false promises.
